What is Margin Call?

Trading · https://idwindsorbrokers.com/knowledge-base/trading/what-is-margin-call/

Margin call is an alert when the margin level of the account falls below a specified level (100%).

It is a demand for additional funds, for the open positions to remain in the market. Irrelevant of the leverage applied to the Client's account(s), the margin call is at 100%.

Account(s) on margin call should be supported with additional funds in order to maintain positions open. The Client has also the ability of reducing exposure by closing and/or "hedging" open position, in order to increase the margin level and remove accounts from margin call status.

For more information, please refer to the Trading Conditions document from your portal under the Documents section.